BORDER GREETINGS

A solitary Christmas tree adds a festive note on the U.S. sector side of Berlin's border between the Allied and Communist areas of the divided city. The bridge in background leads to neighboring Potsdam and Communist sentries patrol the other end of the span.

French Stand Is Challenged

PARIS (AP)—In a direct challenge to France, State Secretary Christian Herter of the United States today told the foreign ministers of the North Atlantic alliance that NATO must continue to integrate its military forces under one command.

Herter's remarks at the opening session of NATO's annual ministerial review sharply underlined the major task of the session—to resolve the differences dividing President de Gaulle from his allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. De Gaulle has openly rejected the principle of integrated forces.

Herter spoke in a closed session of the ministerial council which also heard a call from France for an end to differences within NATO. A NATO spokesman reported Herter's speech to a press conference.

The American foreign minister mentioned recent press reports implying that the U.S. might be planning withdrawals of forces from Europe. He said these showed a fundamental misconception of Washington policy, and that the U.S. intends to maintain its NATO commitments.

Speaking of the concept of integrated defence, Herter said that it was on this basis that the U.S. makes its contribution to NATO. The idea of integrated defence was more important than ever.

De Gaulle has flatly rejected this concept in favor of NATO members retaining controls of their own forces. However, he is understood to have given assurance that, at this time, he will withdraw no more French forces from NATO.

F-101s May Take Place Of Aging Jets

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF's aging CF-100 jet may be replaced in the Canadian air defence system with the U.S. Air Force's supersonic McDonnell F-101.

Negotiations on price and number of planes required have started but have not yet reached the government level, informants say.

There is still no indication as yet whether the government will decide to replace the subsonic CF-100 with another manned interceptor or entrust Canadian air defence to the two Bomarc anti-aircraft missile bases scheduled to be built near North Bay, Ont., and Mont Laurier, Que.

BOMARC ENOUGH

Several months ago, the government strongly suggested that it considered the Bomarc would provide sufficient air defence against manned bombers in the early 1960s.

But in recent weeks there have been indications that the government may be coming around to the RCAF view that Canada must have a new interceptor to patrol its own air space and hold up its end in North American Air Defence Command.

But Defence Minister Pearkes has made it clear that the government doesn't want to put a lot of money into new interceptors.

BLUNT REQUEST

Gen. Laurence Kuter, NORAD commander, said bluntly here Nov. 17 that the CF-100 should be replaced with another manned aircraft "at an early date."

SHORTAGE OF FOOD, HOUSING

Blackfoot Tribe Faces Bleak Winter

GLEICHEN, Alta. (CP)—Southern Alberta's 1,650 Blackfoot Indians, once one of the wealthiest bands in Canada, say they are on the verge of their worst winter in history. But the Indian Affairs branch says assistance is available if the Indians ask for it.

Chief Clarence McHugh said Monday the tribe faces a severe shortage of food and housing. There is little employment for members of the band and a third of the tribe's grain crop is still in the fields because of early snow.

"This is going to be the worst winter in the history of the reserve but the Indian people are

Self-Rule Hailed In Tanganyika

DAR-ES-SALAAM, Tanganyika (Reuters)—Britain today announced plans to end white rule and turn over political control of this former German colony to elected representatives of its 9,000,000 Negroes.

The news touched off scenes of wild enthusiasm. Thousands of cheering Africans thronged the streets. The principal African leader, Julius Nyerere, president of the Tanganyika African National Union, was garlanded with flowers and carried shoulder-high through the cheering crowds, waving an olive branch.

Nyerere has led the movement pressing for self-government in the East African trust territory.

Britain's agreement to the establishment of responsible government next year was announced by the governor, Sir Richard Turnbull. Britain has administered Tanganyika ever since it was taken from Germany after the First World War. It is a United Nations trusteeship territory now.

Wrong Switch Pulled - At Worse Time!

Pulling of a wrong switch in the Pentelion branch of the West Kootenay Power and Light Company was the cause of Kelowna's power failure Monday.

J. C. Meek, district supervisor for West Kootenay in Kelowna, told The Daily Courier the delay would have been much shorter if it had occurred during a non-peak period.

Mr. Meek said it could not have happened at a worse time.

"The whole town is generally switching on power for lighting and cooking uses, and most of the switches were left on making it very difficult for the power plant to take on such a load when the power came through from Pontleton.

He also said it would be a great help if residents would, in event of any future breakdowns, turn off all switches on stoves and heating units until power is resumed.

NO FORMAL REQUEST

Later, an official of the Indian Affairs branch in Ottawa said the band council has not made any formal request for government assistance, but if there is a need for federal money it will be available.

He added, however, that apparently the tribe so far as been able to take care of its needy members out of band funds. An increase of $10 a month in food ration has already been authorized out of band funds, bringing up next spring that won't help the situation now."

Chief McHugh said in an interview the tribe will suffer from inadequate housing. Many of the houses are not insulated and without foundations. There isn't enough wood to fire the stoves or enough money to buy coal, he said.

"There is no employment around here whatsoever. Farming is the only occupation and right now it is at a standstill," he said. "About a third of the crop is still in the fields and although some of it may be picked

Controversy Raging Over BC Power Plans

Jobless Increase, But Are Fewer Than In 1958

OTTAWA (CP)—Unemployed persons in Canada increased to 296,000 at Nov. 14 from 237,000 a month earlier but remained below the 361,000 figure of November last year, the government estimated today.

During the month, the number with jobs dropped by 102,000 to 5,551,000 but stayed well above the 5,773,000 of November, 1958.

The government's monthly statement on employment said the number of job-holders fell off in all regions, with the decline most marked in Ontario and the Western provinces.

In these regions, the statement said, the seasonal cold weather decline was accentuated by steel shortages in Ontario—caused by the United States strike in that industry—and by an early and severe winter in the West.

First Group Of Refugees Due Tomorrow

TORONTO (CP)—Thirty-nine families from the squalor of European refugee camps will reach Canada in time for Christmas. The first group of 19 families is due at nearby Malton Airport Wednesday.

One member of each family is a tuberculosis patient.

They are the first of 100 tuberculosis sufferers and their families being brought to Canada during World Refugee Year by the federal government.

Deputy Citizenship Minister Laval Fortier told the Canadian Committee for World Refugee Year Monday that negotiations with six provinces have been completed for the families to be housed in the provinces.

The TB cases will be located in main centres where medical attention is available, where families can find work and where hospital visits can be made regularly to keep up the morale of the patient in hospital.

LAND CHRISTMAS EVE

The second flight is scheduled to arrive Christmas Eve in Halifax or Saint John, N.B., carrying 20 families. There are 70 persons on both flights. The third flight, not yet scheduled, will go to Quebec or the West.

The TB cases will be located in main centres where medical attention is available, where families can find work and where hospital visits can be made regularly to keep up the morale of the patient in hospital.

Russia Reported To Be Designing Space Cabin

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Russians are reported to be working on a rocket designed to carry a two-storey space cabin, with two or three passengers, to the moon and back. The rocket would weigh 3,000 tons and be about 260 feet long.

The project is described in a Czechoslovakian publication just translated by the commerce department.

The article says the Russians are working on the initial phase of such a project—development of a single-stage rocket with a thrust of 1,500,000 pounds. The idea is to fabricate 20 such rockets into one giant, five-stage rocket.

With the cabin as a payload, the rocket would blast off from the earth, using the first three stages of the rocket to propel the space vehicle to the vicinity of the moon. This would take about 2½ days.

The fourth stage of the rocket would be used to slow down the payload for a landing on the moon while the fifth stage would be used for the return flight to earth.

The commerce department said the article, published in Pravda, said the rocket would be used for the return flight to earth.

Ike Taking Three-day Rest

ATHENS (AP)—President Eisenhower received a resounding ovation in the Greek Parliament today and then boarded the United States cruiser Des Moines for his first real rest since he began his "peace and friendship" mission 12 days ago.

The American leader, renewing his call for peace in freedom in an address to the 300-member Parliament, was interrupted a dozen times by applause and cheers that almost shook the rafters. The Communist-led minority joined in.

Then five hours later the president took his leave of the Greek royal family and drove in a procession to the Athens stadium where he boarded a helicopter for the short flight to the Des Moines.

The cheers of thousands who packed the stadium's upper rows and the surrounding area sent him on his way.

OTHER TRIBES HIT

Mrs. J. C. Gorman, counsel for the Indian Association of Alberta, commented that the Sarcee and Stoney Indians of southern Alberta face similar conditions this winter.

"It is a problem for all Indians of Alberta, they are all in bad shape," she said. "Standards need to be raised by the federal government. We care for other people beyond our boundaries while we should be raising the standard of welfare on our reserves."

Featured entertainer will be Haddad the Magician, a master of hypnosis and sleight of hand.

MSA Broadens Its Coverage

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Medical Services Association in B.C. will put two extensions of its present coverage into effect immediately, MSA president Dr. Keith MacLean has announced.

Dr. MacLean said under the extensions, the age limit of dependants has been raised to 19 from 18 and claims can in future be made for emergency medical care received anywhere in the world.

He said the age limit has been raised to cover the increasing number of students staying an extra year at high schools, and to cover larger number of dependants attending university.

Coverage for emergency medical care, which was previously limited outside B.C. to Canada and the United States, is being extended "in keeping with the times, with more people going to more places," said Dr. MacLean.

Of the $12,587,448 received in member dues this year 97.61 per cent was paid out in claims, compared with 90.46 in 1958. Added to operating expenses of 7.25 per cent, this resulted in a deficit of $107,497.

SCHOOL BUILDING Tie-Up At Vancouver Critical

VANCOUVER (CP)—The school construction program in Vancouver has never been in a more critical financial position than at present, school board secretary-treasurer J. E. Robertson says.

Mr. Robertson told a board meeting that the tight money situation will directly affect more than $3,000,000 worth of proposed new school construction scheduled to start in 1960.

Reading from a letter to board from the Bank of Montreal he said: "It is not possible, at the present time, to enter into any new projects unless permanent financing has been arranged."

Mr. Robertson said a similar letter from the bank was received in October and passed to the education department in Victoria. No reply has been received from the department.

Included in the projects likely to be postponed, said Mr. Robertson, are:

A $240,000 school for retarded children approved by ratepayers at the municipal polls last Wednesday; work on the $500,000

Hundreds Of Millions Of Dollars Involved

By H. L. JONES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VICTORIA (CP)—A controversy over public or private developments of British Columbia's power-rich rivers is boiling again.

Involved are the Peace and the Columbia Rivers and planned projects soaring into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Holding the spotlight now is the province's new energy board, which holds its first meeting today. The big question is: Just how much influence will it have in the making of B.C.'s power policy.

Columbia Talks Near Agreement

WASHINGTON (CP)—The Canadian and United States members of the International Joint Commission are reported nearing agreement on a draft of principles to provide the springboard for a deal by the two central governments to harness the Columbia River for power in British Columbia and Washington state.

Described by authorities as one of the most outstanding power possibilities of the 20th century, the harnessing job may involve total outlays by the two countries of some $3,500,000,000 over a period of 35 to 50 years. Power produced may be about five times that now used by Vancouver.

FINAL SESSION?

The commission, ordered by the two federal governments to produce a draft of principles, Monday opened what members hoped would be a final three-day session, following months of negotiations on what should go into the foundations of a joint Canada-U.S. construction agreement.

There was general optimism at the end of the first session that agreement would be reached by Wednesday, though there is a feeling among the members that not all the legal language may be worked out.

The joint draft of principles is shaping into some firm major concessions for Canada. Canadian authorities argue that this is only a "fair deal" since Canada would provide water storage and flood control at about one-quarter the cost that would result if the projects were undertaken on the American side.

CHARGE "GIVEAWAY"

His opponents, notably CCF Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, have strongly criticized the Peace River Power Development Company in the northern Peace River Valley and charged the premier is playing fast and loose with Ottawa, which will have the final say on Columbia development in co-operation with the United States.

Premier Bennett has said that whether or not the company gets the licence is entirely up to A.F.

Vernon Medical Men Say Passage Sewer Bylaw Is "Only Safe One"

VERNON (Staff) — The medical staff of the Vernon Jubilee Hospital has stated that they believe the $475,000 sewerage disposal bylaw is "the only safe one."

However, the statement provoked a number of questions, says Ellwood Rice, majority candidate.

The medical staff approves the report of the engineering firm of Hadden, Davis and Brown. The city also engaged Associated Engineers, and Mr. Rice points out that this firm indicated "the purpose of this stage (stage one) is to improve the efficiency of the present plant and thus meet the requirements for the year 1959 and 1960."

This report has been favored by Mr. Rice, and the first stage, which would serve the city for five years, costs $123,000. He notes also that page seven of the report states: "The chlorine unit appears to be in good shape. It has ample capacity to serve the plant but the amount of chlorine now being added to the plant effluent is insufficient and ineffective due to the lack of a chlorine contact chamber."

The physicians said in a statement: "We are alarmed by the fact that there are citizens who in their efforts to achieve cheap sewage disposal are ignoring the threat to public health."

Attempts to save money on the treatment plant may cost lives, they warned.

"It is our unanimous opinion that the type and size of disposal plant as proposed in the bylaw is the only safe one."

The warning was made in an attack on majority candidate Ellwood Rice, who is seeking defeat of the bylaw on the grounds consideration should be given to more economical methods of sewage treatment.

His stand is being backed by the Vernon Ratepayers' Association and aldermanic candidate Franklin Valair.

Four other candidates for council posts, including Mayor F. F. Becker, are in favor of the bylaw.

The doctors, who comprise the entire medical profession of Vernon, pleaded for support of the bylaw in the light of a bacteria count on the water downstream from the existing disposal plant which leads into Okanagan Lake.

Bacteria counts of 2,400, 3,500 and 9,200 were shown. The maximum allowable is 200. Okanagan Lake is used extensively by bathers in summer.

"The issue at stake is not one of cost, but efficient sewage disposal," the doctors said.

C. H. Pitt Only One Seeking Reeve's Post

VERNON (Staff) — Charles H. Pitt, a former councillor, is the only candidate for Reeve of Coldstream.

James P. Kidston, reeve for ten years and councillor for four, will not contest the municipal election.

Kidston made the decision not to run for office some weeks ago. He was unavailable for comment since he is in hospital suffering from internal injuries received when he fell out of a tree while working in his orchard. Hospital authorities describe his condition as "satisfactory."

Retiring councillors who will run in the election are John "Paddy" Hill, who has been on Coldstream council for 14 years; Francis P. J. Montesano and Peter Shymanski. Also seeking this office are Montague A. Kurwen and David M. Hett. School trustee candidate is Francis G. DeWolfe.

More than $500 was raised on poppy day, committee chairman Reg. Saunders reported.

It was decided to hold a New Year's eve dance in the Legion Hall. However, only 50 tickets will be sold.

Pat Duke reported the Legion-sponsored boxing club was making rapid progress. Jim Jenkins is now being assisted by Steve Phare.

Sam Glen, zone delegate, reviewed the recent zone meeting in Kelowna, stating the importance of appointment of a zone public relations officer. The zone, he recalled, also put forward a resolution to have a DVA man available in the valley to handle the problems of veterans.

A zone bonspiel is planned in Salmon Arm. Date of this event has not been set.

John Koski Elected Head Lumby Legion

LUMBY (Staff) — John Koski was recently elected president of Branch 167, Canadian Legion, North and South Okanagan regions.

Other officers are vice-president, Tom Muir, Dennis Humphreys and Pete Staff; sergeant-at-arms, Sam Glen; and executive members, past president Robert Fossbery, Stan Redmond, Harvey Howard, Reg. Saunders and Tom Tull.

Plans are being made for a tri-zone meeting with Mainland, North and South Okanagan regions.

Lumby will host the next zone meeting scheduled for March. The membership paid tribute to San Glen for faithful attendance at zone meetings and to Bob Fossbery for his efforts as president.

The organization has received a letter from J. O. Dale, Vernon Jubilee Hospital administrator, thanking the Lumby sisters for their donation of a humidifier.

The humidifier was purchased with proceeds of a dance held last spring, as well as from other minor activities.

Enquiries will be made to determine the possibility of having an inscription placed on the humidifier in the form of a plaque.

The sisters will aid needy families this Christmas. It was decided to make a donation to the lend-a-hand club to be used toward filling hamper.

In addition, the groups will purchase Christmas parcels for old age pensioners.

Future Game Management Topic Of Address Tonight

VERNON (Staff) — Future game management is the work of specialists.

And one of them, Pat Martin, regional game biologist, will address Vernon Fish, Game and Forest Protective Association tonight at 8 o'clock in the Elks' Hall.

Mr. Martin is stationed in Kamloops.

Game passes through the Cache Creek checking station and the jaw bones of animals taken in this district are studied by biologists who recognize trends in ages of animals, conditions of feed and breeding areas.

From these studies come the recommendations for future game management.

Hunters and naturalists alike will be interested in Mr. Martin's talk, fish and game officials promise.

Game Warden Allan Frisby will also attend and speak and will answer any questions.

Reservations will be made at this meeting for the annual game banquet January 18 in the Allison Hotel.

Christmas turkeys will be the prize at a turkey shoot Sunday at the fish and game lodge on the Commonage.

Scattergun events begin at 12 noon and will continue as long as there are shooters. Floodlights will be on after dusk.

A 100 yard range has been set up for rifle shooters.

The comfortable facilities of the new lodge will be used to warm up trigger fingers, and refreshments will be available throughout the shoot.

The turkeys, one for each shoot, will be supplied by Calder Goodenough, of Lavington.

There will be events for novices as well as the experts—and for ladies too.

Participants have been invited to bring their own parties or make up a fivesome at the lodge.

DISTRICT BUSINESS REVIEW

How much does local business contribute to community activities? The total sum is startling. Only those who work on community projects and welfare know the full extent of the merchants' contributions. Apart from outright cash pledges, business houses are called upon for program advertising, prizes at cost or contributed merchandise, and other donations in cash or kind. This giving is done cheerfully, with a sense of real responsibility for community spirit and pride in the community. This cannot be said of outside firms and mail order houses. Money spent outside the community never comes back in form of wages for help, payment of municipal taxes or services, or for community activities. Patronize the district advertisers on this page. It is in your own interests to do so.

W. J. Romanchuk, proprietor of the Westbank Grill is not exactly a jack-of-all-trades, but he is a man of many talents.

In addition to operating his cafe, Mr. Romanchuk runs a thriving barber shop business in the rear of his premises.

The eating establishment has long been known to residents and travellers alike. Specializing in fish, steaks and the always-popular fish and chips, the grill is noted for the reasonable priced food, served in clean, pleasant surroundings.

The business also carries a full line of the latest magazines in the cafe section, which remains open between the hours of 7 a.m. and 10 a.m.

But barbering has always been Mr. Romanchuk's specialty.

He began his work in this trade in 1931, in Penticton. He operated a shop there for many years, until moving to this area in 1947. He purchased the Westbank Grill at that time and set up the barber shop soon after. In addition to his business, Mr. Romanchuk has had a very full and rewarding family life. Since the death of his wife in 1936, he has raised his family alone. He is very proud of this fact, as all his children are now grown up and making their own way in the business field.

Mr. Romanchuk has been, and still is, a very busy man but that's the way he likes it.

So whether you want a shave and a haircut or a T-bone steak, the Westbank Grill is the place for you.

CREEK MAKES WAY FOR HIGHWAY

BIG JOB for construction crews at work on Highway 97 was diversion of Mill Creek. Shown above, the diversion is completed at Five Bridges near where a section of the highway passes through Pridham Orchard. It joins the present highway just east of Five Bridges. This section of the proposed Mexico - to - Alaska highway is being built by Mid-valley Construction. The overall project is scheduled to be promoted by a "1,000-car caravan" from south to north. —(Courier Staff Photo)

Pedestrian Pupils Again City Topic

Heavy school children pedestrian traffic on Richter St. Monday was again brought before city council, this time by the Haymer Ave. Parent-Teachers Association.

The association has suggested the street surface be "widened as much as possible" from Elliott Ave. to the KLO Road.

The new strip of blacktop should be separated from the rest of the street by a white line, says the association. This part of the road would be used by school children on bicycles and on foot.

"Considerable danger" is created by school children walking and riding bicycles on the street, the PTA pointed out.

The city will inform the group that work is under way on Richter from Elliott to the KLO Road. The street is being improved jointly by the city and provincial government.

Disorderly pedestrian traffic involving the three schools near the corner of Richter and Harvey Ave. has prompted much council discussion.

Possible construction of foot paths at the north end of the street will be a matter for the 1960 council.

Staff-Sgt. M. N. MacAlpine has reported children "wander all over the street" on their way to and from school.

SOON FORGET

The youngsters obey traffic rules when the area is patrolled, he said. But forget them even after being taken home by RCMP who told their parents of the hazard.

Letters have been sent by the city to the schools stressing the need for pupils to obey pedestrian rules.

City Endorses Sewer Bylaw As Every Community's Duty

Daily Courier KELOWNA and DISTRICT

Kelowna, British Columbia Tuesday, Dec. 15, 1959 Page 3

"Indeed Very Interested" In Excursion - Council

City council has told two Calgary businessmen it is "indeed very interested" in a proposal by the two to start a dine-and-dance excursion on Okanagan Lake.

Arne E. Thorson and D. Spencer asked council support in the venture. They propose to convert the retired ferryboat Lequime into an excursion vessel.

Eventually they say they hope to obtain a dining lounge licence. "There is no question that the tourist potential is unlimited," council said in a reply to Thorson and Spencer. To date there has been no reply from the Calgary businessmen.

Council pointed out Calgary is only 400 miles from Kelowna with the opening of the Roger Pass highway in late 1960 and added: "There is a very definite possibility of a Yellowhead Pass highway being constructed in a few years."

FIVE YEAR PLAN

In return for berthing rights, the city has asked the promoters to share the cost of proposed renovations to the Queenway Ave. slip. The slip is to be made to conform to the second slip now in use as a launching ramp.

The Board of Trade has offered support in licensing the excursion and is in "wholehearted support of the venture."

Kelowna city council has endorsed a $475,000 Vernon sewer referendum which goes to the people Dec. 17.

The resolution to back the bylaw came from a committee appointed by Mayor R. F. Parkinson to study Vernon sewer requirements. On the committee were all council aldermen and D. B. Herbert, city controller.

"It is the responsibility of every community in this land to reduce water pollution to a minimum," says the resolution. The committee's recommendation came partly as a result of recent meetings of the Okanagan Lake Pollution Control Board with provincial health authorities.

STATEMENTS CLARIFIED

The committee also "clarified" statements printed in the Dec. 3 issue of The Vernon News comparing the cost of Kelowna's new sewer disposal plant to that of the proposed Vernon plant.

The News stated: "Why should Vernon's plant cost $475,000 when Kelowna's plant cost only $225,000?"

The committee pointed out, taking into consideration the servicing of industrial waste and the Vernon army camp, it is necessary for Vernon to have a sewer system capable of servicing an estimated population of 20,000 people.

The Kelowna system is designed for a minimum capacity of 10,000, provision having been made for a digester to serve a total population of 15,000 and not 20,000 as recently reported.

"STAY OUT"

Ald. Donald Horton asserted the forthcoming bylaw is "not the affair of Kelowna city council."

It would be better if we stay out of it."

"But it is our duty to see that erroneous statements printed in the press are corrected," he said. Ald. Jack Treadgold told council it is this bylaw were turned down it would be a step backward for the community.

It was pointed out that if the city of Kelowna were to provide sewer facilities to supply a capacity similar to that of Vernon the total cost to the taxpayers of Kelowna would be approximately $200,000 over and above the recent $224,000 improvement program.

BLACK EYE

Ald. Winter told council that it is not for Kelowna to side with the Vernon council.

"When one pokes his nose in someone else's business he always comes out with a black eye," he said.

Mayor R. F. Parkinson told the committee that, since the installation of Kelowna's sewer system contamination in this area is down to a minimum.

"It will be a good thing if Vernon city council passes the sewer bylaw."

Kelowna Fire Trucks To Protect Glenmore

Kelowna fire trucks will be available for action in Glenmore until the end of March "depending on the seriousness" of a possible call from that community.

City council Monday passed a resolution to supply Glenmore with adequate fire protection despite the fact trucks are not normally allowed outside the city.

INSURANCE FACTOR

Ald. Ernest Winter told council several residents in Glenmore are getting insurance rates based on the fact that the area is covered by the Kelowna Fire Department.

"This is not right," he said. "What happens if our fire engine is in Glenmore and a fire breaks out in Kelowna?"

The fire chief would consider the seriousness of the call and designate the fire-fighting equipment and men accordingly.

Ald. Dennis Crookes pointed out Ald. Crookes told council that Glenmore is willing to pay Kelowna $400 for the period.

GROWING UP

"We have to grow up together," city calls will get first priority.

said Ald. Jack Treadgold. "We might be able to save some lives especially over the holiday season and the winter months."

Mayor R. F. Parkinson said it was a "wonderful move" to make. "We should continue to help Glenmore until they get a fire engine."

Kelowna Drivers Pay $3,679 Last Month For Traffic Misdeeds

An RCMP report to city council Monday showed a total of $3,679 in fines were levied on motorists here under the Motor Vehicle Act for the month of November.

Seventy-five of the fines were for motorists violating no-left-turn signs.

Four people were convicted for having noisy mufflers and four for impaired driving.

For traffic infractions 38 people were convicted and 552 tickets were handed out for parking offences.

The report stated that the RCMP attended four fires during the month.

Bill Crooks Wins Last Silver Cup For This Year

Explaining "the difference between a house and a home" was the difference that spelled victory for Bill Crooks at Kelowna Toastmasters Monday. He will be the custodian of the silver cup until Toastmasters reconvene Jan. 4.

Dick Perry won the medalion for his forceful opinions on "adult delinquency," easily qualifying as most-improved speaker of the four competing.

Walt Laurie's impassioned appeal on the proper way to celebrate "the December 25th birthday party," was climaxed with a Christmas carol. Toastmasters surprised themselves with their combined vocal harmony.

Peter Barclay's talk on world imbalance proved he is adept at speaking in a serious vein.

During table topics, Santa Claus was ably defended by David Wall. One of the highlights of the evening was the panel discussion, conducted by Dick Hartwick, general evaluator. Gaston Gaucher was toastmaster of the evening.

POISON MOUSE SEED FATAL TO DOG

A dog owned by John Hindle of Watt Rd. died Monday after being poisoned by mouse seed. The seed, discovered in an autopsy, is believed to be same type used by fruit growers to eradicate mice in their orchards.

A second dog, owned by a Westbank couple, was saved about the same time after it had eaten some of the seed.

Noted Consultant On Town Planning Hears City Case

A request to city council by a city woman for re-zoning of a Harvey Ave. and Ellis St. property to commercial classification was referred to a town planning meeting today with consultant H. P. Oberlander.

In a letter to the council she claimed her property had been ruined because of people parking cars there in connection with a funeral home.

Mrs. J. L. B. Dunlop said she had read in the Daily Courier that council had shelved her request for re-zoning and referred it to a town planning meeting.

"If the city is now going to restrict businesses should not all businesses be treated alike?" the letter said.

"If so there should be restrictions to allowing a service station come as far east on Richter St."

Mrs. Dunlop told the city in a previous letter she had entered an agreement with an oil company subject to re-zoning of a lot on the northeast corner of Harvey and Ellis. She asked the property be made commercial.

M. J. Bonner Best Army Marksman At Turkey Shoot

GLENMORE—Tpr. M. J. Bonner, was named top scorer of the annual Christmas turkey shoot of the British Columbia Dragoons "B" Squadron, Sunday at the Glenmore Rifle Range.

Tpr. E. P. Schmidt came second and the following soldiers won Christmas turkey dinners: Sgt. H. F. Meise, Sgt. G. Terada, Tpr. A. Bothe, Tpr. D. A. Chapman, Tpr. J. P. Kula, Tpr. J. R. Jennings, Tpr. G. P. Mitchell, Tpr. D. F. Smallshaw, Tpr. L. D. Taylor, Tpr. D. W. Vadden and Tpr. J. R. Samoylav.

Capt. J. T. F. Horn was in charge of the shoot. He was assisted by Sgt. D. Appleton, Sgt. A. F. Cruikshank, Sgt. H. F. Meise and Sgt. G. Terada.

Scoring was exceptionally high despite the fact many of the marksmen were new recruits under the young soldier training program.

In recent years the Dragoons have held their annual shoot on an indoor small bore range but this year, due to favorable weather, it was held outdoors.

Contestants used the army's new Fabrique Nationale semi-automatic rifle for the first time.

Excellent BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY

in Kelowna, B.C.

For a smart merchandising minded young man preferably one who has grown up in the community. This is a splendid opportunity for such a person who wants to set up business in his hometown.

This is a three-quarter million dollar business in the sale and servicing of cars and trucks. It represents a direct factory franchise which could develop into the number one or number two dealership in terms of vehicle sales and profits in the area. It would include Canadian, U.S. and British built cars, trucks, parts and accessories. Naturally the opportunity would demand capital investments in garage buildings and inventories.

Watchful Eye On The Police

To the British people, with their ingrained love of privacy, there is something peculiarly offensive about wire-tapping. This helps to explain the indignation that has gathered over a recent case in which police are alleged to have tapped the telephone of a doctor. The information thus collected, it is alleged, was later used against the physician in a hearing on an "infamous-professional conduct" charge before the General Medical Council.

The Government had previously taken the position that the authorities must have the power to tap phones, but had promised that it would be used only in cases involving serious crimes or the security of the State. To find information being gathered by this means for use in a non-criminal proceeding is therefore peculiarly shocking. British newspapers are deeply concerned, questions are to be asked in Parliament, and a full-dress inquiry is likely.

Quite apart from the wire-tapping question the incident illustrates the anxious care with which Parliament and the British people generally watch the activities of the police. There is probably no country in the world where policemen enjoy the degree of public respect and co-operation which they do in Britain. The man on the street—who in other countries often looks upon the constable as an enemy—regards the "Bobby" as a friend and protector, and is always willing to help him by supplying information, and in every other way possible.

The British police—both in the cities and in the country—have earned this confidence not only by the professional efficiency but by a long-established tradition of keeping within the law themselves, and of respecting the rights of men and women under arrest or investigation. Any departure from this tradition is a matter of deep public concern.

There have been several examples of this recently. In 1957 a young Scottish boy complained that he had been beaten by two constables in the town of Thurso. The matter was taken up in the press and in Parliament, and eventually a tribunal was appointed to investigate. A similar controversy arose this year when a man accused of the murder of a police officer was detained incommunicado for five days after his arrest, and subsequently appeared in court with a bruised face. Members of Parliament wanted to know if he had been subjected to the "third degree". In another field rumors of corruption in the seaside resort town of Brighton were thoroughly investigated, and eventually two senior police officers were sentenced to five years imprisonment each for receiving bribes from nightclub owners.

The British police thus operate under constant and critical public scrutiny. Any real or apparent falling away from established traditions brings immediate protest. This helps powerfully to keep the force up to standard, and thus enables it to deserve and retain the respect of the public.

This is an example which Canadians might well study. In this country, the police complain, and with some justification, that they do not receive adequate co-operation from the people at large. At the same time, there is in many places a widespread feeling of resentment against the police. It is alleged that they are often discourteous and arrogant; that they are sometimes brutal and unfair in dealing with persons under suspicion; that they are too ready to use their guns.

The trouble is that, except in a few very grave cases, these charges are never followed through. They are neither proved nor disproved. They remain festering, to poison relations between the police and the public and to undermine the administration of justice. Canadian police forces could do with the steady, informed public scrutiny which the police of Britain receive.

A Good Citizen

"A good citizen," says the Rapid City (Montana) Reporter, "is one who hums the national anthem while filling in his income tax return."

What do you think of this? A good citizen of course files an honest return and pays his tax. But he doesn't have to be happy about it to be good. Nor does he have to hum himself into a patriotic trance—perhaps he does to retain his sanity, but not to be a good citizen. In fact, if more citizens, faced with this annual compulsory offering to the gods of government selected a "Tin Pan Alley" tune, such as "I Wonder Why", and forthwith proceeded to find out, we might all have better government and lower taxes. A recent report of the Senate Finance Committee reveals some startling figures, on the cost of government. The per capita costs of government on the three levels—federal, provincial, municipal—has risen from $276 in 1949 to $560 in 1958.

Let's have a national anthem, someday, and let's hum it. Let's, also, give thought to where we are going—with government costs—whether what we demand of government is really important, and whether, constantly, we are getting our money's worth.

Good Day For Launching... But The Wassa Never Sailed

By HANS DAHLBERG

STOCKHOLM (AP)—It was a pleasant August Sunday. After church, Stockholm citizens gathered at the harbor in a festive mood.

They crowded the green hills, waiting for the mighty Wassa of the royal fleet, to embark on her maiden voyage.

Saturday night had been a wild one. Beer and schnapps had flowed freely for the crew and soldiers leaving on the Wassa to join their king fighting in Germany.

King Gustavus Adolphus, embroiled in the Thirty Years War, was waiting impatiently to impress his friends and foes on the continent with the most splendid warship the world had ever seen.

All spring he had sent treasure-laden letters to the master shipbuilder, Henrik Hybertson, urging him to rush the ship to completion.

But the Wassa never reached the north German coast. In fact, some time next year—322 years later—she will complete her maiden voyage of something less than two miles.

When the Wassa set sail that Aug. 10 afternoon in 1628, she carried a crew of 133 and 300 soldiers. Altogether, more than 500 people were aboard, including some soldiers' families.

LIST GIVES WARNING
Officers on board noticed a slight list while the Wassa was still docked, and Erik Jonsson, the chief ordnance officer, went below deck to make sure the ship's 64 guns were properly lashed. They were.

At 4 p.m., Capt. Soerfling Hansson Jute ordered the sails set. As the ship increased speed, the captain noticed she was not answering the helm as she should.

A sudden gust of wind hit, and the Wassa started to list to leeward. Once again Jonsson ran below deck, to order the leeward guns pulled to the windward side. But it was too late.

Water poured through the gun ports. Soon the masts were touching the water. With sails and flags flapping, her rigging slowly disappeared. In moments, only the main mast was visible.

The spectators in the green hills, speculating at first, rushed to the scene and saved 45 people.

The next day, the royal court started an investigation, but no cause was found for the disaster. Hybertson proved he had not loved the king's order building the ship. The captain and officers, it was proved, were properly lashed.

Nobody was hanged. Three days later the first salvo attempt was started, by a British engineer, Ian Bulmer. He failed. So did others, for more than 30 years, until a Swede, Albrecht von Treibselben, introduced the diving bell. He succeeded in recovering much of the armament and other equipment of value. Eventually, the Wassa was forgotten, and slowly she settled into the mud.

But a few years ago a navy engineer, Anders Franzen, stumbled across old papers telling about the Wassa. He had been interested in ship salvage since boyhood. One summer evening in 1958, he put out in a boat to sound for the ship.

Where Franzen had calculated the Wassa lay, his soundings marked the outline of a ship her size. He interested authorities at the navy's diving school, who had been making a made-to-order training course.

For 2½ years, the navy's frogmen brought up some 700 objects from the watery depths. They included odd pieces of the ship itself and decorative art objects from Sweden's baroque period—allegorical carvings depicting mystical gods and animals; vines and bunches of flowers; sensual female figures; and a magnificent figurehead of a roaring lion.

The Wallenberg Foundation, created by a leading Swedish banking family, became interested. The present king, another Gustav Adolf, added his prestige.

A committee was formed to study salvage of the ship's hull, and the cradle method was decided upon. Last Aug. 12, six tunnels were dug by water jets, and 12 wire cables, each two inches thick and 130 yards long, were passed under the Wassa and paid out to two surface pontoons.

Pumps started to empty the pontoons of water. As they did, the 700-ton ship rose three feet. Additional lifts over a 17-day period moved the hull two-thirds of a mile, and she was grounded at a depth of 50 feet off Stockholm's naval base.

The hull is to be cleaned by water jet and lifted to the surface, possibly next year. Eventually it will be displayed in a museum to be especially constructed for the royal ship.

Historians call the Wassa the world's oldest fully identified ship. Naval experts credit the oak nails that joined the hull with helping to preserve it. Iron nails, used to attach decorations disintegrated, leaving only rust-filled holes.

Man Who Feared Tibetans Now Enjoys Life In Alberta

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP)—Henry Delmas, who lived in the shadow of Mount Everest and "in fear of attack from Tibetans" for almost 17 years, now is enjoying semi-retirement after building up one of the best-known ranches on the Prairies.

"Ever since I can remember I wanted to be a rancher," Mr. Delmas recalled.

His Half-Diamond D in the Cypress Hills of southeastern Alberta became one of the best-known throughout Alberta, Saskatchewan and Montana.

LARGE RANCH
At the peak of his ranching career almost 10 years ago, the Half-Diamond D covered more than 14 sections of the "best grazing land in these parts." A section is a mile wide and a mile long.

Despite his age, which he gives as "around 60," he still finds time to operate a two-section ranch a few miles from Medicine Hat.

"I go out to the ranch in the summer and stay in Medicine Hat during the winter months," he said.

"I was born in the little town of Asansal, India," Mr. Delmas said. His father was a mining engineer in the army and his work forced him and his family to move to Darjeeling on the Indo-Tibet border while Henry was still a little boy.

After 17 years there, he went to Scotland to study engineering at Edinburgh University. He has never been back to India.

YOUNG EMIGRANT
"But my real love was ranching," he said, "so I left Edinburgh against my parents' wishes and with a small bag of belongings headed for Canada."

"I started working on a farm in Ontario and before long I wound up out west, first in British Columbia and then working for a farmer south of Medicine Hat."

The ranching life was interrupted for three years when Mr. Delmas served with the Canadian Expeditionary Force during the first World War, as a member of the 17th battalion of Medicine Hat. On his return he took up a homestead south of Elkwater Lake and began building it up.

Within 10 years that spread was a gathering-place for all cowboys in the area.

The Half-Diamond D became almost a town in itself. Mr. Delmas had worked hard on his land, and soon was also operating a post office, a store, dance hall, race track and arena, all on the ranch.

Lowly Farthing Faces Flimsy Future In U.K.

By STEWART MacLEOD

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—It was an undramatic moment in the House of Commons when the chancellor of the exchequer rose and announced that the farthing faced a flimsy future.

"We will study it," said Derick Heathcoat-Amory in serious tones. "I invite the widest possible comment."

But two weeks later a treasury spokesman conceded that "not a single comment" had been offered in this letter-loving nation. Only the deputy master of the mint took time to write. He said the farthing is useless.

Treasury sources now feel that the one-offensive coin—it takes four to make a penny—is doomed. The mint will melt them into cartwheel pennies.

From a buying standpoint, no one in Britain is apt to kick up a fuss over the farthing. For the last five years farthings haven't been worth the effort of carting them around. Most English stores refuse to handle them.

Only a few northern Scotland gasoline stations jack up their prices a farthing at a time—and they accept the coin as legal tender. The only other outlet is through coat costs, still figured to the accuracy of a farthing.

OTTAWA REPORT

Forgotten Man Tackles C.C.F.

By PATRICK NICHOLSON

An almost forgotten man is emerging again onto the political stage and is already meriting the spotlight.

Formerly the newspaperman's dream and the Liberal Government's scourge, once the small merchant who appeared to be a traitor to private business, always the politician with the warm heart and the cool head, Moose Jaw's Ross Thatcher has come out of involuntary retirement to lead the Liberals in Saskatchewan.

He has sold his profitable prairie hardware business, and has taken on the whole-time job of attempting to stamp out socialism in Canada by destroying its main-spring.

"The CCF is an octopus which must be killed," he said to me. "A limb can be cut off in any province, but it can only be destroyed in Saskatchewan, where it has its head."

Ten weeks ago, ex-CCFer Thatcher was elected by an overwhelming majority to lead the moribund provincial Liberal Association, which had neither a president nor a candidate nor a nickel in many of the 55 constituencies.

ROSS AND THE DRAGON

He regards his role not just as another political leader seeking electoral victory, but as a gallant knight who must ride forth next summer to slay the dragon of socialism. To do this, he must defeat the four-time winner, Premier Tommy Douglas, whom he has already beaten in the famous public debate on Crown Corporations in Saskatchewan.

His program has the charm of bold simplicity: to gather all the anti-socialist vote in the province and all the free-enterprise support in Canada, in one united front. He points out that Douglas has won three elections with a minority vote against a free-enterprise opposition split three ways.

His battle against the CCF will be easy if he can do this. But as he told me here last week, either the Tories or the Socreds could have enough anti-socialist votes to let the CCF win again on a minority vote, yet neither of these parties has a reasonable chance of itself being elected as government.

In 10 weeks, the new Liberal leader has made a typically energetic start on his long-shot task. He has already marshalled 31 excellent candidates for next summer's expected election.

These include four mayors, seven reeves, and several former CCF or Tory politicians. He has seven full-time organizers working across the province, including former federal MP Irvin Studer—the federal Liberal Party has none. He has addressed 32 meetings, and he has attended a score of $5-a-plate fund-raising banquets.

TURKEY FILLS THE CHEST
"I have never eaten so many turkey suppers in my life," said "Slim" Thatcher, bursting with health and turkey. "But it is a most effective means of raising funds," he told his fellow-Liberals gathered in Ottawa. "At the $10-a-plate dinner for 'Mike' Pearson to save Saskatchewan from stagnation, he says."

At Prince Albert, where we have an excellent candidate in Dave Stuart, we did even better: $5,123, partly subscribed by the merchants."

The farmers of Saskatchewan are disenchanted with their CCF government, and they disapprove of its planned shotgun wedding with labor unions. They are swinging over to help Thatcher's crusade to save Saskatchewan from stagnation, he says.

In the past 15 years, while Canada's population was swelling from 12 million to 18 million, Saskatchewan was the only area of Canada to lose population, as its native sons drifted away from "the province without jobs."

Private enterprise has shied away from the province with the anti-free-enterprise government, which has itself disastrously ventured into business, nine of its twenty-one Crown Corporations having failed and having thus thrown many Saskatchewanians out of work.

Ross Thatcher is already getting willing support from Tories and Socreds who are joining the free enterprise forces behind him, as he crusades to destroy the government which he claims is destroying that province.

As "Mister Free Enterprise," he may well become next year Canada's only mainland Liberal Premier.

MUSICALLY SPEAKING

By BETHEL STEELE
Registered Music Teacher

By BETHEL STEELE
Registered Music Teacher

Musically speaking Kelowna has become a very busy place. This is as it should be. The fact that all the events are worth while and of a high musical standard shows that the community along with the rest of Canada is more aware of the importance of the arts than ever before.

The Canada Council in its support of the 'Arts' has taken fine music out of the limbo of 'long hair' and given it to the 'man on the street'.

The recent performance of Rossini's 'The Barber of Seville', by the Canadian Opera Company proved this beyond the shadow of a doubt. Sung in English it was a fantastic performance. Fantastic from the standpoint of audience enjoyment. I enjoyed the audience as much as I enjoyed the performance.

Musically it was delightful, the voices well projected and acting beyond reproach.

If there was a weakness it was Rossini. She forced the upper register. Personally I put it down to the fact she was singing in English and had not yet learned to soften the E vowel. This vowel is every singer's worry and makes the English language so difficult to sing.

Our grateful thanks to Rotary for bringing this treat to us. I am sure everyone joins me in asking the Rotarians to bring this company back next year in 'The Merry Wives of Windsor'.

I think the most important musical event so far this year was the junior high school Christmas concert held in the junior high school and completely separate from the senior high. Students and teachers should be proud of the very high standard achieved.

The band has resonance in its tone and there is no over blowing. String playing in the schools should now reach a high quality of tone and bowing with two strong teachers in the junior high.

Perhaps the highlight of the evening was the singing of the Kelowna Junior high choir under Mrs. De Long. Even though the tone was at times questionable the atmosphere of the carols was one of reverence. The tone was clear and sweet.

HIGH PRAISE FOR CHOIR
The senior high school choir range in order to obtain a greater with Mr. McKinley conducting number of engagements. There gave a program of carols in the library last Wednesday evening.

This choir is developing quickly. Its tone is beautiful. There is no suppression here, and dynamics are well balanced. As these young people sing more together they will acquire the art of communicating with their audience. In this choir Kelowna has a possible candidate for a high award for school choirs for all of Canada in next spring's music festival. I would give anything to hear this choir do a Bach chorale.

Mary Louise Jensen's musical setting for an early English carol was performed by a quartet from the high school symphony and sung by a member of the choir. The composition won the Arts Council Christmas competition. The music suited the words of 'I sing of a maiden! ... It is lyrical and rhythmic. I found myself humming the melody. Good luck Mary Louise we hope you will be able to develop your musical talent.

The James Milligan concert last Friday night was one that had been awaited with great interest by the Kelowna Community Concert association. Last year's engagement was canceled because of a severe throat infection. Mr. Milligan lived up to our expectations of him as a dramatic artist. The Handel was exceptional in its dramatic power and intensity, especially so in the Judas Maccabaeus.

This voice is so beautiful in certain parts of its range that one is forced to question its placement in the upper register due to its weakness in Mezzo (soft) singing.

A GREAT BASS
When Mr. Milligan sang with the Vienna Symphony Orchestra at the European Choral Festival the Neos Oesterreich lauded his "profound and highly dramatic bass." And that is just where Mr. Milligan should do all his singing. There it is rich and resonant, completely relaxed allowing him to project himself and to communicate his imaginative powers.

Mr. Milligan is a fine actor. It seems a pity we are unable to see him in the Opera medium.

Because there are shades of Boris Christoff, the great Russian Bass, in Mr. Milligan's voice, we might ask why he must sing as a baritone. Due to the expediency of making a living, singers quite often find it necessary to change the natural voice otherwise magnificent voice.

In an interview later with Mr. Milligan we asked his viewpoint concerning Canada Council grants to Canadian musicians. He emphasized that only established musicians should receive this help because there was the danger of encouraging the so called habitual student. The grants should be used for the creation of artists and for the help of students in academic work or in pedagogy.

When asked how he liked England in general and London in particular Mr. Milligan spoke of the English as being "kind, thoughtful and sincere. They say what they think and have a sense of values. As for London, there is no other city like it anywhere and there is great music there."

William Aida at the piano proved a fine accompanist. As soloist his playing of the Chopin Berceuse and the finale of the Chopin E-sonata was sensitive and dynamic. Mr. Aida is only 21 and a pupil of Glenn Gould's teacher.

HANDEL'S MESSIAH
Music lovers are reminded that CBC Wednesday night, Dec. 16 will carry the traditional performance of Handel's Messiah by the Toronto symphony and the Mendelssohn choir under the baton of Frederick Sylvester. Soloists will be Lois Marshall, Margaret Sullivan, and Robert Reid. Canadians and the American Tenor Donald Gramm.

The Dec. 5 copy of Saturday Night warns record collectors concerning the 'packaging' of Columbia's latest recording of the Messiah. In it Columbia has wandered from the traditional. The numbers have been scrambled and some altogether eliminated. Those desiring to own the Messiah are advised by this writer to procure any one of the Canadian, English or European recordings. This music must never be tampered with. Two hundred years have set the pattern for its performance.

Vegetables Essential To Health Even During Winter Months

I find that fewer fresh vegetables are used in cold weather than in the warmer months," observed the Chef. "Yet all year round the supermarkets here have a fine assortment."

"Why is it that people almost always eat fewer vegetables during the cold season?"
"For two reasons, Chef," I said. "The first is tradition, based on habits of eating going back to the turn of the century."

Root-Type Vegetables
At that time, the major vegetables available in winter consisted almost entirely of the root-type—turnips, potatoes, onions, parsnips and carrots, together with cabbage, winter squash, celery and occasionally oyster plant, and celeriac.

"The habit of eating few vegetables in winter, because they were considered 'unnecessary', 'common', 'oresome' or not as energy-supplying as meats and cereals, has been passed along for two generations. Even today the average homemaker is likely to skimp on vegetables, come the winter season."

Considered Unimportant
"The second reason is that many people still consider vegetables unimportant in the winter diet, which is a nutritional mistake. The year round, the same generous quantity of vegetables is needed by everyone."

"First of all, they furnish soft bulk that encourages healthy intestinal action. Next, yellow and green vegetables contain vitamins A and C, plus minerals, essential to good health."

"Skimp on fresh vegetables, or cut down drastically, and the money saved must often be spent for medicine."

Snow-Clearing In Montreal Runs To Millions Of Dollars Yearly

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Snow may turn Montreal into a winter wonderland, but to the city fathers it's a multi-million-dollar headache.

While the city's annual snowfall has shown a significant decrease since grandfather's day, the cost now of clearing it away would make his eyes pop.

Last winter for example, the total fall was 116 inches—about 16 inches more than usual—and the cost of removing it was a whopping $5,540,386.

To pay it the city had to dip into funds originally allocated for other purposes. To avoid doing this again, the city administration is trying to get a special fund which could be used to cover costs.

If the snowfall is below average, the city might get away with a bill in the neighborhood of $1,000,000, but it is more likely to be closer to $4,500,000.

And even this sum would not include the cost of administration or the bill for fuel and maintenance of the small army of vehicles used in the program.

It all adds up to the largest municipal snow-removal program on the continent. Philippe Cabana, director of the city roads department since 1953, has under his jurisdiction 828 miles of streets and 1,250 miles of sidewalks which must be cleared and 40,000 drains which must be kept open.

To do the job he has $6,000,000 worth of equipment ranging from 26 "senior blowers"—the massive machines which chew up a bank of snow, pulverize it and blow it into waiting trucks—to 159 light snow-blowers which clear the sidewalks with plows which keep the sidewalks clear for pedestrian traffic.

He has a regular force of 950 men at work during the winter, and during a bad storm can get as many as 2,800 at work in shifts for 24 hours or more.

To ensure that these men and machines are efficiently employed, Mr. Cabana and Guy Vanier, his chief assistant, must work like field commanders in battle against the snow.

The Dominion weather office at Dorval Airport and a private firm of weather forecasters each sends the department a minimum of four weather reports daily. In addition the private firm sends a detailed weather map and since it works directly for the city also sends special bulletins when necessary.

When snow is imminent, Mr. Cabana and Mr. Vanier first order more than 100 trucks with salt spreaders to be ready to move. As the first flakes fall, the trucks head for slopes on main thoroughfares and for busy intersections.

At the same time the department's squad of inspectors begins patrolling in radio-equipped cars.

The snowplows are usually held in the neighborhood of 41,000, but it is more likely to be closer to $4,500,000.

Once the snow has stopped and plowing, of which 40 per cent is done by private contractors, is well along the main streets, again the main routes of private cars, buses and commercial traffic are the primary targets.

A major portion of the snow plowed up is hauled away by truck to municipal dumps at Pointe Ste. Charles in southwest Montreal, at 13th Avenue in the northeast, or conveniently dumped on the ice of the St. Lawrence River.

In residential areas far from the dumps where householders do not object too strenuously, the snow is simply blown onto lawns. During his term as head of the roads department Mr. Cabana has constantly experimented with methods and systems for speeding up his gigantic task.

Of the changes he has made and is proudest of the vast increase in the use of salt to melt the snow. Mixing it with sand

GOVT'S CO-OPERATED ON HOSPITAL INSURANCE

1950s Outstanding For Health Services

OTTAWA (CP)—Health and welfare services in Canada made big strides during the 1950s with the co-operative effort by federal and provincial governments that brought hospital insurance into being.

Residents of all provinces except Quebec now have available standard ward and diagnostic services for relatively small premium payments.

The program first came into effect late in 1958 with Newfoundland, British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba entering agreements with the federal government under which the federal and provincial governments shared 50-50 the cost of ward and diagnostic services.

Four other provinces entered similar agreements in 1959—Ontario and Nova Scotia on Jan. 1, New Brunswick July 1 and Prince Edward Island Oct. 1. Quebec evinced interest in the program, 1950s OUTSTANDING . . . P7 and may enter in 1960.

PATIENTS INCREASE
Institution of government plans for hospital insurance followed several years of federal grants for hospital construction to increase hospital capacity. With the coming of hospital insurance, no serious dislocations were reported, although there was a noticeable increase in numbers of patients in most hospitals.

The hospital insurance program is to be extended during 1960 to residents of the Yukon and the Northwest Territories.

The 1950s also saw two important changes in the old age pension. The 1950s also saw two important changes in the old age pension. The 1950s also saw two important changes in the old age pension.

The long campaign against polio took a with 75 per cent who became ill more favorable turn late in the while unprotected with Salk. The federal government has offered to continue to pay half the cost of the vaccine shots during 1960.

Now a national vaccination program under which federal and provincial governments share equally the cost of providing anti-polio shots free of charge is credited with sharp reductions in the numbers of those contracting paralytic polio.

TEST IN 1959
The vaccination program, begun in 1956, met with its first big test in 1959 when the incidence of polio was the highest since 1953. Total number of cases how- ever, compared with 1953, were only one-third the 1953 total. 1959, quarterly reports were made public on the levels of contracting polio.

Freedomite Squatters Pose Final Problem

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 20-year-old land problem is the key to peace in the restless Doukhobor country of southwest British Columbia.

The problem: How to get an adequate tax return from the rich farming lands the Doukhobors occupy in the Kootenays without arousing the hostility of the radical minority of the sect.

Most Doukhobors—perhaps 10,000 Orthodox members who have generally accepted the Canadian way of life and another 2,500 of the radical Sons of Freedom—still occupy the land they settled early in the century.

The Sons of Freedom only recently have begun to show respect for authority.

Many Doukhobors pay small rentals and a few pay taxes. Others pay nothing at all.

COMPANIES FORCLOSE
Mortgage companies foreclosed on about 18,000 acres in the depression of the 1930s when the Doukhobors were unable to meet debts totalling $600,000.

The provincial government, which bought the land for $286,500 in 1938, appointed Mr. Justice A.E. Lord of the B.C. Supreme Court to look into the question.

In 1957, on his own recommendation, the land was offered to the Doukhobors at 60 per cent of its appraised value.

Since the offer was made, however, only seven sales have been completed.

Most of the land is occupied by Orthodox Doukhobors. Some, who no longer follow the communal way of life, own their land and pay taxes. Several thousand others still live in colonies and pay the government a nominal rent.

Perhaps 10 per cent of the Sons of Freedom own land and pay taxes. The majority are squatters, paying neither rent nor taxes.

observers think the Sons of Freedom are here to stay.

In any event, 1959 was a year of accomplishment on the complex Freedomite scene. The thorny problem of educating the children of the group appears to have been solved.

The government has taken steps to recognize Freedomite marriages; the Sons seem to have reduced efforts to draw attention to themselves by acts of violence.

A new friendliness has settled over Freedomite communities.

Police men who were once pelted with rocks and rotten vegetables as they searched for truant children have been treated cordially since Stipendiary Magistrate William Evans of Nelson ordered the release of 77 Freedomite children from a government dormitory at New Denver last August.

The Sons had refused to send their children to school, firmly maintaining that Canadian schools teach militarism.

The matter finally started discussion within the sect itself and in April a group of women deposed the 50-year-old fraternal commander as the ruling body. At the end of July, parents of the New Denver children—some of whom had been government wards for six years—promised Magistrate Evans they would help them to school.

RESULTS HEATENING
Dr. J. F. K. English, deputy minister of education, is pleased with the children's attendance record since they were released.

"We are very pleased with the parents' attitude," says Deputy Attorney General Dr. Gilbert Kennedy. "When the police meet them now to discuss any problems, they are not unfriendly. There is a whole changed attitude."

Says Magistrate Evans: "You never know what may happen overnight, but they have been very co-operative so far."

Magistrate Evans is also administering the marriage law, which recognizes the ceremonies performed by parents. About 350 of 1,000 such marriages have been legally registered.

No one who knows the ways of the strange Sons of Freedom is convinced that the peace is durable. But there is more hope and promise of improvement in the sect's relations with the community than perhaps ever before.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Arrow Loss Left Vacuum Fighter Squadrons Next?

By DAVE MCINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — When the blow torches were put to the supersonic Arrow in 1959, Canada went out of the big-weapon business and it appeared she might also withdraw from the manned interceptor field.

The decision to scrap the Arrow program after enormous expenditures of some $300,000,000 left a vacuum in Canada's defence position.

At year's end, nobody was sure how this vacuum should be filled—or whether it could be filled at all. The rapid advance of the space age left defence departments all over the world groping for solutions to problems which themselves were far from clear.

SUICIDAL WAR

Only one thing became more clear: an East-West hydrogen war would accomplish only mutual suicide. Many Canadians began saying the country should leave the defence field altogether and put its money into something useful.

But the government signified its continuing strong support for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization by deciding to re-equip the RCAF air division in Europe with the supersonic Starfighter strike-reconnaissance plane.

which will carry nuclear weapons.

It also announced that American nuclear warheads will be stored in Canada for defensive use in the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile.

Preliminary work started on the two Bomarc bases near North Bay, and Mont Laurier, Que.

The government still faces a formal decision on whether to replace the aging CF-100 jet—in service with the nine RCAF fighter squadrons in Canada—with another manned interceptor.

BOMARC FAVORED

But the consensus is that the CF-100 squadrons will be gradually dismantled and anti-aircraft defence left to the Bomarc.

The bomber is being superseded by the intercontinental rocket.

The last destroyer of a 14-ship program begun in 1950 was commissioned in 1959 and construction started on six new destroyers. The government probably will decide next spring whether to put into production a family of new vehicles for the army.

Only the navy had a missile—the air-to-air Sidewinder. The RCAF is not to get the Bomarc until 1961 at the earliest and the army is still experimenting with artillery and anti-tank missiles.

All in all, 1959 was a year of major defence decisions in Canada. But it left in its wake even more major decisions still to be made.

U.S. Fleeting Of Suspensions Rankles CAHA

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) —

George Dudley, CAHA secretary-manager, told the Kitchener Record that one result may be a suspension imposed by each demand by the CAHA for the suspension of the U.S. Amateur Hockey Association by the Inter-Lockhart, president of the national Ice Hockey Federation USAHA, as one of the offenders. Lockhart is using Mimie Menard, Dudley said the USAHA is the counterpart over the use by U.S. hockey suspensions imposed by champion Belleville McFarlands.

Educational Equipment Demands Good Vision

By Herman N. Bundesen, M.D.

Year by year a college education is becoming more essential.

Most of you, I know, are planning, or at least hoping, to send your children to a university. But will these youngsters be physically equipped for higher education?

The demands of school and college are growing stiffer all the time.

PRIME REQUISITE

Efficient vision is a prime requisite for most college students. Since about 83 per cent of all knowledge comes through the eyes. It's up to you, the parents, to protect this precious eyesight from the very beginning.

BEGINS WITH GOOD HEALTH

Good eyesight, like so many things, begins with good general health. Your child should have a simple, well-balanced diet and a lot of sleep, exercise and fresh air.

Moreover, I strongly urge a thorough eyesight examination for all children when they are three or four years old.

Watch your child's reading habits. For one thing, don't let him read for prolonged periods. Moderation is advisable in everything, as I have so often said.

His posture should be erect even when reading. He should hold the reading matter about 15 inches from his eyes and the light should shine over his shoulder onto the page.

PERIODIC REST

Advise him to rest his eyes every once in a while, either by closing them or by gazing off into the distance.

You can't expect a child to come to you and complain that he is having eye trouble. You must watch for telltale signals.

I have listed many warning signs in the past, but I don't think this sort of thing can be over-emphasized. So here are some indications that signal a trip to an eye specialist:

Fatigue after continued eye-work, watering eyes, constant rubbing of the eyes, reddish eyelids, squinting, frowning or scowling.

Also dropping head, inattentiveness, restless eyes, a dislike for reading, leaning over a desk while reading, tilting the head to one side, aversion to bright lights and holding reading material either too close or too far from the eyes.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mrs. G. K.: Is it possible for a person to have astigmatism in one eye and be near-sighted in the other eye?

Answer: This condition is very possible.

Opening lead—queen of clubs.

Experience is a tremendous asset in bridge, but one of the dangers associated with long experience is the acquisition of a lethargic attitude towards commonplace situations.

Let's suppose declarer ducks the club lead and then wins the club continuation with the king. He leads a heart, and when West plays low, finesses the nine.

If East takes the queen, which would seem to be a natural thing to do, declarer will have no trouble making at least ten tricks. Regardless of what East returns, South will later take another heart finesse to give him four heart tricks and bring home the contract.

If East does not take the queen of hearts, South still makes game. He takes a diamond finesse which works, returns to dummy with the ace of hearts, and repeats the diamond finesse. Declarer makes two spades, two hearts, three diamonds, and two clubs.

But South will be hard put to make nine tricks if West plays the king of hearts when the suit is first led. With this one play West wipes out all possibility of declarer making four heart tricks.

Declarer may duck the king, hoping West also has the queen and planning to pick it up later with a finesse, or declarer may take the king with the ace and then take a diamond finesse. But he will not be able to return to dummy for a second diamond finesse and is likely to come home a lame duck.

West should play the king of hearts when the suit is led, and this is so despite the usual practice in defense of second hand playing low. General rules should be made subservient to particular circumstances, and be readily abandoned for cause.

West can reason that if declarer has the queen of hearts the king is dead anyhow. He should therefore play the king on the assumption that East has the queen, and hope that by playing the king he will eliminate the threat of dummy's long heart suit.

Camp Cheers As Pair Leave For Canada

LATINA, Italy (CP)—Ferd and Munira, a bride of six months, are to go to Canada. When this news swept through of the refugee processing center of Latina, 45 miles south of Rome, camp officials and refugees cheered or broke into tears. "I saw people cry," said Dr. Zdenko Babic, movement officer of the camp for the inter-governmental committee for European migration. The story is one of a man's love for his childhood sweetheart. Ferd, 20, could have gone to Australia last April but turned down the chance down. Munira, 24, had tuberculosis and the Australians refused to accept her as an immigrant. They left Rome aboard the first Canadian Pacific Airlines plane moving tubercular refugees and their families to Canada under federal government sponsor-ship. The plane is to arrive at Toronto Wednesday morning.

GREW UP TOGETHER—Ferd and Munira grew up together in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia. They planned to get married when Ferd could earn enough money as a jeweller. But that day never came. Ferd learned to be an electrician but even that didn't help him find a better job. They both hated communism and refused to accept regimentation. They felt that if they were to have a life of freedom they must escape to another country. Early in 1958, they decided to make their way across the Yugoslav border separately. BY TRAIN AND ON FOOT—Ferd boarded a train in June and travelled to a town 15 miles from the Italian border. He made his way on foot at night to Trieste where Italian authorities granted him political asylum. When Munira learned by letter that Ferd had escaped, she and two other girls decided to make the same attempt. They walked 100 miles to the Italian border and succeeded in slipping into Trieste in November. The trip took two days and three nights. The girls' food was chocolate and sugar. After being reunited in Trieste, Ferd and Munira applied to enter Australia as immigrants. Ferd received permission early this year, but Munira was rejected for health reasons. "I couldn't leave my beloved Munira," Ferd said through an interpreter. "I decided I should stay with her even if it meant living in a refugee camp for the rest of my life." Ferd and Munira were married June 30, 1959. They had resigned themselves to life as refugees until they were brought forward as candidates under the Canadian plan.

Authorities Test Contaminated Milk

CHICAGO (AP)—A federal official, reporting that some milk contains penicillin and traces of pest-killing substances, told farmers today that "we expect to devote more attention to milk in the near future."

Commissioner George P. Larrick of the Food and Drug Administration made the statement in a talk at the annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

The government withheld some cranberries from the market before Thanksgiving because they had been contaminated by a chemical weed-killer. It also halted the marketing of some chickens treated with a synthetic sex hormone. The substances in both cases, officials said, could induce cancer in animals.

DRUG APPEARS IN MILK—Larrick said that when penicillin is infused into a cow's udder to treat mastitis, the drug comes out with the milk for a period of time.

"Several surveys conducted by the Food and Drug Administration have shown penicillin and chlorinated hydrocarbons in market milk."

"We have tried to get across to dairy men the fact that it is necessary to discard milk from treated animals for an appropriate time following the last application of penicillin."

U.S. To Shoot Rocket To Venus

MANCHESTER, England (Reuters)—Observers at the world's largest radio telescope near here today reported they are standing by for the firing of a United States space rocket to Venus.

The launching at Cape Canaveral is expected to take place within the next few days.

If successful, tracking stations in various countries will be able to pick up signals and some, including Jodrell Bank, will be able to switch the transmitters in the rocket on and off.

RUBBER CONSUMPTION UP—OTTAWA (CP)—Consumption of all types of rubber—natural, synthetic and reclaim—rose 7.8 per cent in October to 22,679,000 pounds from 21,046,000 a year earlier, the Bureau of Statistics reports.

FULL PRODUCTION RESUMED—WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Full production has resumed at all Chrysler of Canada assembly plants here with the recall of approximately 1,800 passenger car plant hourly-rated employees. These production workers were laid off Nov. 25 due to the steel shortage.
